MESSAGE HELD UP

Washington, Dec. 4.—A coalition of Progressives and Democrats to force liberalization of House rule was in prospect today, as the House met on the second day of its attempt to organize.

Representative Nelson, leader of the House Progressives, conferred with Representative Garrett, Democratic leader, to agree upon a program which both could support.

Democratic members in general favor the same amendment for which the Progressives are fighting. Nelson had announced earlier in the day that a revised revision to the thirteenth party and that he would enter into a coalition with the Democrats only as a "last resort."

The result of the House's first ballot today showed no appreciable change in the deadlock. The vote stood: Gillette, 197; Garrett, 197; Cooper, 17; Madden, 5; present and not voting, 3.

With a total of 416 voting, it required 209 to elect. The clerk ordered another ballot.

Washington, Dec. 4.—House Republicans today entered the second day of the bitterest congressional battle since the fight on "Cannibalism." The spectacular features of the fight which ended in Speaker Cannon being shown of his autocratic powers, were lacking, however. There were no fiery speeches. The program was to take ballot after ballot for speaker, until one side surrenders.

But there were no signs of weakening on either side. Heartened by the tactical victory over the administration forces of four ballots yesterday, Progressive leaders announced they intended holding the House in deadlock indefinitely, unless administration forces consent to scrap the gag rule.

While conceding the Progressives have the power to make good their threat, Republican leader Longworth refused to recognize the bloc or make any concessions. "None will be made," he declared.

Talk of a temporary truce to begin President Coolidge to deliver his message to Congress ended abruptly today when Longworth refused to treat with the bloc. Delivery of the message may be delayed a week.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Republican leaders today prevented the organization yesterday of the 68th Congress. Hardly had the new House and Senate convened at noon before the progressive group in the House made good its threat to block the election of a speaker. Four ballots were taken without result and the House adjourned until noon today, when Republican organization leaders renewed their efforts to re-elect Speaker Gillette.

In contrast with the storm in the House was an uneventful 45 minutes session of the Senate. Although an organization fight there is in the background there was not effort to force it and it was apparent that it would be deferred until President

Speaker Gillette and Congressman Longworth, whose election as Speaker and floor leader of the House of Representatives has been contested, preventing organization of that body. President Coolidge will not deliver his message until the House is organized.

TRUCK BANDITS ROB
BIG DISTILLERY OF
$50,000 IN WHISKY

Brownsville, Pa., Dec. 4.—Overpowering three guards, one an International Revenue Agent, and then handcuffing them together, eight bandits looted the Vandergrift Distilling Plant at Centerville Station, seven miles south of here today.

The bandits escaped with 37 barrels of whiskey on three trucks, valued at more than $50,000, according to present bootleg prices.

Coolidge had delivered his first annual message to Congress.

The President cannot deliver his message, however, until the House is organized, nor can the new Congress function. Some leaders said that even the Senate would be unable to transact any business other than that of receiving and acting upon nominations and treaties, which is solely a Senate function.

[National Crop Improvement Service] OF ALL the 4-H clubs now active throughout our land, probably the ones making the best record of all are the Girl's Canning clubs.

"The extension department of every state is promoting this magnificent idea," says Mr. Dennis A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire company. "In the past, cans upon tons of valuable fruits and berries have been allowed to go to waste for lack of any concerted effort to preserve them for family use."

"The work of some of the girls is simply marvelous and in addition to the proficiency which they have attained in preserving, they have also learned scientific propagation."

"Any intelligent canning-club girl can easily make jellies and jams and preserves, canning by the cold pack method, and lay in a sufficient supply, not only for her own family but to pay her way through school and college by selling standardized canned goods to women's clubs in town."

"Poverty will never visit the family whose cellar shelves are loaded with good things as shown in the illustration."

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4.—More than 800 persons have been killed directly or indirectly by poison liquor since June 1, 1923, according to Frank Paul, Special Investigator for the Coroner's office. "To say that 800 deaths have been caused so far this year by poison liquor is putting it mildly," Paul said.

WASH DAY FAILS TO DAMPEN ARDOR OF
POULSON REVIVAL

Monday night does not usually prove to be the biggest night of a revival, but it very frequently is the best night of the meetings. And so it proved at the West Side Methodist tabernacle last night. Promptly at seven thirty choir director Meredith announced "Brighten the Corner Where you are." Soon he had them singing en masse, then by sections, and by delegations. Even the preachers present were asked to help brighten the corner where they were. The Rev. Charles K. Gibson, and a splendid delegation from the Eleventh St. Methodist congregation were on hands, Pastor Gibson making the opening prayer.

The theme of the evening, announced by Evangelist Poulson was "The New Birth." Text, John 3:3. Using a wonderful store of homely illustrations, he made extremely plain just what Jesus meant when He said "Ye must be born again." Then, when the challenge was given for persons to seek the new birth, one man promptly arose and presented himself at the altar. During the brief service that followed a number of prayers were offered and the old time choruses were sung.

This evening a number of visiting delegations from out of town churches are expected to be present. Tomorrow evening will be "Family Night" and some recognition will be given the largest family present. The theme announced for tonight is "Jacob at Bethel."

WEALTHY YOUTH
SHOOTS SELF AT BALTIMORE HOME

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4.—Clarence W. Wheelwright, 22, son of the late Jere Wheelwright, coal millionaire, is in a critical condition at the Mercy Hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

The shooting took place early today at the Wheelwright home here. Wheelwright told the police the shooting was an accident.

While attempting to unload a sixty-five calibre pistol the weapon was fired, Wheelwright told the police. The Rev. Dr. Hughes B. Hewitt, called to the Wheelwright home, said members of the family told him young Wheelwright had tried to kill himself.

TRINITY CHURCH ITEMS

The Bible School showed exceptional interest in the study period Sunday which was taken from Acts Second chapter. Before the classes were called to their lesson excellent music was rendered by the orchestra with singing that was soulful. The missionary program consisted of two letters which were read—one from Japan written two days after the earthquake of September 1, and one from Bishop Stuntz' son on the field in India, where class Number 15 supports a native worker. The attendance was down by 58 to 373 while the offering was up by $14.47 to $77.10.

This week's events start tonight with Queen Esther's Circle. Wednesday evening mid week congregational gathering, followed by official board. Thursday has Aid Society at 3. In the evening the men of Trinity go to West Side Tabernacle service.

A Terrifying Spud

This, ladies and gentlemen, is the only living specimen of the great What-is-it. Although it looks more like a hippopotamus or a blood-sweating behemoth of Holy Writ, it's really a potato. This champion spud was raised by George Martin of Antioch, Ill., and weighs four pounds.

When Truck Hits Train Enjoyable History Talk

The train over the Pennsylvania coming down from Crampton yesterday about one o'clock struck an auto truck at the Crescent Refractories brick plant at Curwensville. Three young men were on the truck and were injured. One of the young men named Richards was driving the truck, which belonged to Anthony Bellmore and with him were two young fellows named Way and Kennedy. All three of the boys were more or less cut and bruised about the head and body. Dr. Blair was summoned to the scene of the accident who attended the boys and fixed them up. The truck was almost entirely demolished.

Creditable Records Are Made By Three Cows In
C. L. Lowe DuBois Herd

Three creditable records for butter production were made recently by Jane Aaggie Segis and Aaggie Clorinda Pell Pontiac, of the C. L. Lowe herd, of DuBois, according to the advanced registry office of The Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Jane Aaggie Segis produced 468.7 pounds milk containing 17,870 pounds butterfat equal to 22.32 pounds butter in seven days and in thirty days she produced 1994.5 pounds milk containing 70,150 pounds butterfat equal to 87.40 pounds butter. She is two years and eleven months of age.

Aaggie Clorinda Pell Pontiac aged two years produced 802.8 pounds milk containing 15,921 pounds butterfat equal to 19.90 pounds butter in seven days.

Breeders of dairy cattle who are in a position to put time and special attention on testing work have enhanced the value of their animals greatly by the official records they have made. Dairymen whose facilities for record making are somewhat limited are given an opportunity by the advanced registry department to determine the production of their cows through the farm's and dairymen's classes. Such classes are useful especially in affording definite information as to the production of cows when the are handed under conditions which approximate those to be found on the average dairy farm.

MARTIN FULLINGTON CALLED

Martin Fullington, who suffered a severe paralytic stroke early Saturday morning died this morning at about four o'clock. His condition from the first was very critical and practically no hope was entertained for his recovery. Services will be held from the home of the deceased on Fourth street on Friday afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. Fullington was in his fifty-seventh year.

The installation of Wallace Smith as President, L. A. McDowell as Secretary and James Mitchell, Jr. as Treasurer was the principal business of the Commercial Club meeting last evening. Dr. Frantz, past president presented a handsome bouquet to the retiring president, Philip Reed, and the retiring Secretary, Randall B. Brubaker, and a box of cigars to Harry Evans, retiring Treasurer.

The new officers start in with a full membership roll, the club now having an even one hundred members, the limit under its rules, and with such a fine working body nothing but success can attend their efforts.

Following up their well known penchant for helping every good cause, the club invested in a $25 Health Bond in connection with the Christmas seal work.

R. I. Fulton and Grant Ross, new members were present, as were the following guests: A. E. Woolridge, of Woodland; M. I. Gardner and Father M. A. Ryan.

The club guest and speaker of the evening was Harold D. Woolridge of Bradford Township, who spoke on the early history of Clearfield county and Central Pennsylvania, delving back into the musty archives of the past in a most interesting and exacting fashion. His talk was very much enjoyed by all present and indicated that he has spent no little time in gathering together the information he possesses.

TWO MAN TEAM PUTS
C. H. S. SQUAD ON THE DISABLED LIST

The last date on the Clearfield High foot ball schedule, but one which the public knew nothing about, was Monday, December 3rd, when the huskies tackled a team in the persons of George Thurston and Cal Johnston and found this two man outfit to be good sports in dropping the cost of about eighty mighty fine dinners. The game was staged on the big work floor of the Workman's Bakery in the presence of many devoted guests and although George and Cal put over a lot of fouls in the form of chicken and turkey that C. H. S. bunch clipped every wing and cleaned up every formation. The long table was arranged in the form of a gridiron with goal posts at each end and the foot ball poised in the center ready for the kick-off. Captain Ken Barnes performed that function and the game was on. Every man on the team stuns it out to the finish but all are out of the game today, their physical condition being at the lowest ebb for months. Many fouls were called and all were chosen and no doubt the doctors are reaping the benefit of the penalties today.

After partaking of this wonderful meal (ask Jordy) the squad took time out and absorbed several short but well given talks. Toastmaster Thurston got a great hand in re-

SPRING PRIMARY IS TO BE HELD APRIL
22 NEXT YEARDate Advanced Allowing Certification of the Winners In National Delegate Contests.

A MONTH EARLIER

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 4 The spring primaries will be held Tuesday, April 22, instead of in May, as has been the custom heretofore. A change in the law advancing the date of the spring primaries in presidential election years from May to April was made by the last assembly.

The national party conventions are held in June, or early in July, and it was found in certain instances where delay was encountered in computing the vote of delegates that the time intervening between the primaries and the convention was almost too short to certify delegates in time.

Tuesday, November 4, in the date of the general election next year.

Herve Malkames, chief clerk to the Luzerne county commissioners, has worked out the political calendar for next year as follows:

February 2—First legal date to obtain signatures to nominating petitions for state and national offices.

February 19—Last day for secretary of the commonwealth, chairman of state and county committees, and secretaries of municipal boards to certify offices to be voted on at primary.

February 19—First day for county commissioners to publish election proclamation for primaries.

February 19 and 20—Register assessors in boroughs and townships sit at polling places to receive any additional names or make corrections in party enrollment prior to primaries.

February 21—Registry assessors return books to county commissioners.

February 26—Last day for county commissioners to start advertising primary election proclamation.

March 13—Last day for filing petitions for state offices with secretary of the commonwealth.

March 14—Last day to withdraw petitions filed with secretary of the commonwealth.

March 25—First legal date to get signatures for county committee candidates.

March 25—Last day to file petitions with county commissioners.

March 25—Last day to withdraw petitions filed with commissioners.

April 15—Commissioners advertise time and meeting place of return board.

April 16—Specimen ballots for primary to be on file in commissioners' office.

April 22—Spring primary election day.

Dan Meyer drove over from Pottsville in his new Pierce Arrow on Sunday and spent the day with his aunt, Mrs. Grant Snyder. They were accompanied by Mr. Grub and son.

CRAG SENTENCE IS REMITTED

Washington, D. C. Dec. 3.—Without condemning the offense President Coolidge today remitted the 60 days jail sentence imposed on Charles L. Craig, comptroller of New York city by Federal Judge Maer for contempt of court.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

For the third successive year, the boy's poultry club at Morrison's Cove in Blair County has realized the coveted profit of $1000 and is once more entitled to bear the name "Thousand Pound Poultry Club."

The six boys, ranging from 14 to 17 years of age, managed their flock this year that the books showed a profit of $1280, according to the club leader A. L. Baker.

With a flock of 12 hens averaging 100 eggs each for the year, J. O. Over, Jr., secured the prize as the best egg producer. The group, 114 in all, were mounted to the meat market and place went to the market where 100 hens were sold for $100 and brought him $1000.

Send of livestock that the Pennsylvania State College will show at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, December 3 to 10, 1924, from the college last year. The entire exhibit included eight cattle and three sheep.

Assignment of swine includes the record lot of Berkshire that were sent to the college hog farm last spring by breeders from all over the state to be fitted for the contest classes at the International. The Berkshire "porkers" average about 210 pounds and will be entered in the class for hogs under 250 lbs.

Several farmers of Clearfield Co. are making "old Biddy" work over time for them by installing electric lights in the poultry house. By lengthening the day, more time is allowed the birds to consume the feed from which eggs are manufactured. And more eggs at this time of the year mean more money in the poultryman's pocket.

Experienced poultrymen say that poultry mating about the first of November respond with an increase egg production very quickly if artificial light is used. They advise that the day be lengthened to about twelve or thirteen hours. A longer day, they say will increase the winter egg production, but is likely to cause a disastrous falling off in March and April.

Where lights are used, the birds must be fed more grain, or a rapid reduction in body weight is likely to result followed by a molt in the spring. Regularity in feeding, water and in operating the lights are necessary if good results are to be obtained.

Several kinds of lights are used but electric lights have been found most efficient and more economical in labor and operating cost. A 40 watt light for 200 square feet of floor space is recommended. The light is generally placed six feet above the floor, midway between the front of the house and the perches, in a four foot high reflector which is four inches deep.

In a survey recently conducted among the poultrymen of Wayne County by the poultry extension department, it was found that the use of morning light, evening light, a combination of the two, and the evening lunch all gave good results. The farmers reporting all thought that their method was the best so evidently all are satisfactory.

Clearfield County needs bull associations.

The value of a bull association in promoting a breed of dairy cattle in a community and in making possible the profitable selling or surplus stock is forcibly demonstrated in the experience of Potter County farmers.

About four years ago, a group of Ayrshire breeders in Potter county organized a bull association. At that time there were only four purebred Ayrshire herds in the county. Holstein purebred herds numbered 25. With the establishment of the Ayrshire bull association, a rapid expansion in purebreds began to take place. Today, there are about eighty farms with purebred Ayrshires, an increase of 2000 per cent in four years. Although the Holsteins have also shown a growth, the purebred herds now number 125, an increase of 500 per cent as compared to the 2000 per cent increase in Ayrshires. This demonstrates clearly the value of a bull association in expanding purebreds in a community.

This association was "the first Ayrshire bull association in America" and bears that name. It is made up of seven blocks, each block or group of farmers owning a purebred sire backed by good production records. As a result of the organization and expansion of the breed, a quantity of surplus breeding stock has been raised and has been marketed at good prices in carload lots. Dryers now come to Potter County with the assurance of securing a good choice of well-bred Ayrshires in sufficient numbers to make carload shipments.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in the morning service Sunday. As St. Paul tells us in 1 Cor. 11:23: "The observance of it is a constant proclamation of the Lord's death." The singing by the choir, under the direction of Miss Frank and Mrs. Ray as organist was as always very superior. The Sunday School attendance was fine thru out all the departments of the school.

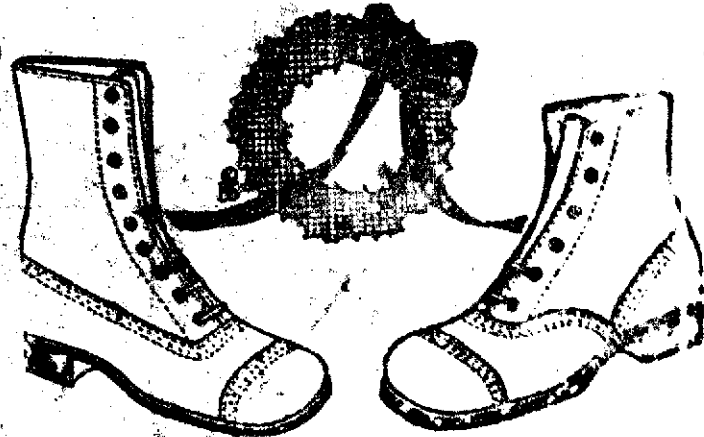

The evening sermon was the fifth in the series on "God and You." Sunday evening the congregation was very good to hear the one on "God Depending on You." God alone can save the world, but God cannot save the world alone, we must do something to think about.

The regular services of the week. Prayer service on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

It's Time to Take Celery King

Many doctors say influenza may be with us before springtime. Get your blood in good condition—take Celery King three times a week for three weeks—that helps. Give it to the children also, for it's a good, old-fashioned vegetable tonic that does almost nothing, but gently and surely, regulates the bowels and puts the entire system in fine condition. "I want Celery King." Your doctor will know he is handing you the kind of tonic laxative.

A YEAR'S SAVINGS

According to the savings reports, it has not been by any means a poor year financially in the United States. It has not been even an ordinary year. The American Bankers' Association reports that in the fiscal year ending June 30, the American people added $1,041,000,000 to their savings accounts. That was not only a big gain in itself, but it was six per cent more than the savings of the previous year.

American banks have about $35,000,000,000 in them, of which $19,000,000,000 are in savings accounts. No wonder the world envies American prosperity and financial solidity.

Readers may be interested in the relative saving power of the different sections of the country. New England has $405.00 per capita in the savings banks; the Middle Atlantic States, $270.00 per capita; the Pacific States, $199.00; the East Central States, $147.00; the West Central States, $94.00; the Southern States, $15.00. "New England thrift" still leads.

CORN HUSKERS

Corn husking has ceased to be work and become a sport. On November 26th John Rickelman, of Mount Hamill, Iowa, won the first interstate husking contest ever held, defeating H. D. Paul, of Ipava, Illinois.

A scientific calculation made by an expert of Iowa State College credited Rickelman with husking 44.6 bushels in two hours and twenty minutes, while Paul husked 40.5 bushels. Both men were penalized for missing corn in their rows, Paul suffering a reduction of 62 pounds and Rickelman 22 pounds.

Anyone who has even seen corn husked may admit that there is just as much competitive fun possible in that pursuit as in pitching horseshoes or playing golf, or any other unproductive pastime. It is especially appropriate that competition should be encouraged in the harvesting of the biggest food crop on earth.

Why not go on to national championship contests, with a substantial prize awarded by the Department of Agriculture? We hope to see the day when this peculiarly American sport finds a place in the Olympic Games. The whole world needs corn huskers.

FASHION AND COLOR

Time was when the rainbow or prismatic spectrum furnished all the colors an ordinary mortal needed to know about. It is different now.

The color expert today must be able to tell at a glance the difference between such fascinating colors as "racquet," "Bombay," "birdale," "tan bark," "Mandalay," "jack rabbit" and "ether." These, say colorists, are the dominating color tendencies for shoes in the order of their importance.

Stockings, however, don't have to match the shoes absolutely. For a stocking ad gives the color assortment there are "coriander," "African," "fawn," "caramel," "suede," "chestnut," "autumn brown," "log cabin," "mouse" or "beige."

Gloves, again, are slightly different, ranging in color from "leatherette" and "covert" through "coffee," "brown," "mode," "beaver" and "oak," to "mastic" and "biscuit."

Coats and suits, both men's and women's, follow similar color tendencies. There still seems to be only one shade each of black and white, but otherwise chaos reigns in the color world. No longer need one pity the poor color-blind, for they can still be happy with a very simple color scheme.

DAIRY

Concrete Highways Are

Help in Marketing Milk

Milk is an everyday commodity. The most important feature in marketing milk is to be able to deliver it as soon as possible after it is produced. On that item depends the success or failure of the dairy industry. It is a well-known fact that in the locations where the dairy industry is most successful, the community is served by a network of permanent highways, usable every day in the year.

Such a location is found in western Washington where nature has provided vast areas of green pasture land and man has built hundreds of miles of broad concrete highways, thus producing the combination which makes possible the production and the transportation of this vital, everyday necessity.

About twenty years ago a large milk products company constructed a small condenser at Kent, in western Washington. From this small beginning the enterprise grew until at the present time it is a large condenser is established, and these are located in communities where paved highways furnish quick and reliable transportation facilities from the farm to the condenser. Every day, winter or summer, rain or shine, hundreds of trucks are seen carrying milk from the farms to the plants.

Before the concrete highways were constructed, milk was hauled to the condenser by teams. By relaying teams it was possible to haul milk every day but the difficulties encountered were great. The load was hauled part way by one team, which when exhausted was replaced by a fresh team for the remainder of the trip. Only small loads were possible, 2,500 pounds or 40 cans being considered a big load on unimproved roads.

As the condition of the roads improved and paved highways were built, trucks supplanted teams and routes were extended, until at the present time approximately 75 per cent of the milk received is transported by truck. Some trucks cover two or three routes, each of which formerly required a team. They bring in the milk in less time and haul larger loads. A comparison of two routes serving the Chubb's plant demonstrates the value of paved highways. One is an eight-mile route over poor roads and covered by a team; the other is a 25-mile route over concrete roads and is covered by a truck. Both routes start on their journey at the same time. The truck, covering 25 miles and delivering 100 cans of milk arrives at the condenser about 8:30 a. m. The team, covering only eight miles and delivering 50 cans, arrives about ten o'clock.

To market his milk the farmer needs only to set out his cans on a platform by the roadside. Along comes the truck over its established daily route, picks up the milk at the farmer's gate, delivers it to the plant and returns the empty cans along the return trip. By this system alone it is possible for many farmers to market their milk. Most farmers do not produce enough milk daily to warrant the trip to town with the milk, and for these farmers it would be unprofitable to bother with milk production if the milk routes were not established.

The hauling cost to the farmer varies with the distance his milk is hauled and with the condition of the road over which it is transported. Over paved highways the rate per hundredweight is noticeably less than over unimproved roads.

Among the most important items in milk hauling is the length of time the milk is on the road. Especially is this true in the summer time. Milk delivered by truck is always in better shape when it arrives at the condenser than milk delivered by wagon.

Milk for Young Calf.

After a calf is five weeks old it needs no whole milk unless very delicate. Increase the feed until 18 or 20 pounds are being fed daily. Wean at six months of age and if good hay and grain have been provided, weaning may be done earlier.

Give Dairy Cows Rest.

Give the dairy cows six or eight weeks rest between drying and freshening. It gives them an opportunity to put on some flesh and to get in good physical condition.

TRADE RECORD
THE STORY OF THE BANANA

We consume about 4 1/2 billion a year, but bring them all from foreign countries. Most of those imported are the products of American capital invested with our tropical neighbors.

The humble banana which now smiles upon us from every fruit stand the country over illustrates the growing reliance of the United States upon the tropical world. A compilation made for the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York shows that we have paid to our tropical neighbors in the Caribbean region nearly $400,000,000 for this single article of tropical food since our acquaintance with it began forty years ago and that we are now consuming more than 4 billion bananas every year, and re-exporting a limited number in our American neighbors, especially Canada.

The figures above quoted of nearly a half billion dollars paid for the bananas brought into the United States since we began its acquaintance does not, says the Trade Record, by any means measure the sums paid by the consumer. The "high cost of travel" adds more to the final value of the banana than in any other important class of imported foods. From the time it is cut from the parent stem before fully ripened, as it always is, it requires great care and intelligent attention at every stage of its travel from the moist, tropical climate in which it grows to the temperate zone, freight and thousands of miles from the place of its production.

Most of the bananas which we import, and the United States is the world's largest importer of that fruit, are the product of Central America and certain of the Caribbean islands, where the growth has been brought to the greatest perfection by the liberal use of American capital. Years ago when the value of the banana as a food came to be realized and its growing popularity with our people was noted, American capital, always on the alert to improve world industrial and economic conditions, began to enter it in an enlargement of the supply. It was soon found that the banana could not be successfully produced in this country, for it required a more distinctly tropical climate than is found within continental United States, and a study of conditions in the neighboring tropics developed the fact that the hot and moist climate at the western end of the Caribbean was especially suited to its most successful production. So the coastal lands of Central America were carefully "combed" by trained experts in this line, and after years of exploration and intelligent study the sections in which the American banana could be safely invested were determined upon.

The first step was to procure the consent of the governments of the respective countries, then the lease or purchase of the lands, then the difficult task of "clearing" the tropical jungles, then the construction of railways and tramways to connect the interior of the plantation with the nearest port, then the construction of steamers especially fitted to safely transport the fruit to the American ports and again warehouses for the storage of the fruit on its arrival and the equipment of cars for its safe distribution throughout the big temperate zone area of this country. All these heavy expenses for specially equipped transportation and storage facilities were rendered necessary by the fact that the banana, which is cut from the parent stem before fully ripened, must have an even and intelligently adjusted temperature en route to the consumer both in order to give him the fruit in its properly ripened condition and to avoid heavy losses in its transportation.

Thus it is quite apparent that the $20,000,000 which we annually send to the Central American countries as the price of their bananas at the water's edge is only the beginning of the cost at the place of consumption in the United States, and that the $400,000,000 which we have sent to our Caribbean neighbors since we began our acquaintance with their bananas has run into the billions when measured by the sums paid by the "final consumer."

But the "banana habit" based upon a growing recognition of its real food value is permanently established with us and while the general advance in world prices has resulted in an increase of about 33% in the cost of the banana in the country of production we are willingly sending to our Caribbean neighbors about $20,000,000 a year for the bananas at against $15,000,000 in 1913, $6,000,000 in 1900, $4,000,000 in 1890, and $1,820,000 in 1884, the year in which the first official record of their importation was made.

Progress Editorial For Women

THINGS THAT ARE ENDURING

By FLORENCE DAYNES

"A good piece is always good, and it lasts through the centuries," said the slim and poised young woman who was telling "The Story of Silver" to the Women's Club. "On the Pullman train the other night, under the huge buildings around the Grand Central, I began to ask what would happen if everything collapsed to be excavated 2,000 years later, and my new clothes would be a pinch of dust, but by little silver vanity case would be untouched by time, ready to be put in some museum."

Later, the speaker told of something else that was enduring. "It doesn't come from the name of a town or of a man, that word 'sterling,'" she explained.

Centuries ago the old Hanseatic traders paid for English goods in silver coins that were always of the same value. "Honest man, they were, and the English liked to deal with them."

"They called them 'Easterlings,' because they came from the east. Gradually the coins came to be called 'sterlings.' Then it was a question of time till the first two letters were dropped and the coins were known as 'sterling,' and sterling silver it has been ever since."

It was quite unconscious, apparently, the implied symbolism between the enduring silver and the honest dealing that gave a name to the precious coin, and came shining down the years like the pure metal itself at its brightest.

The little woman, intent on showing her beautiful and historic examples of the silversmith's art to the best advantage, perhaps never connected in this way in her own mind the two little stories which she told. But there the lesson was, like a gem in a handsome setting. Fashions pass, manners and customs change; the thing that is of so much importance today is forgotten in a few years. But sterling honesty, like sterling silver, is enduring.

The question of setting a table with the proper silver service brings up many questions of form that may last a year or a decade. The pattern of the teaset and the spoons is sure to vary through the seasons. But the square dealing, the sincerity, the kindness, of the hostess who uses the silver, will remain untarnished in memory when each piece is a valued heirloom.

Every Farm Home Should Have A Radio Set Installed
Radio Is The Greatest Thing Ever Invented To Bring Pleasant Evenings To Those Living On Farms

Think of sitting in your cozy sitting room and hearing concerts in Chicago's largest hotel, a lecture from Atlanta, a band playing in far-off Iowa, and let the kiddies hear the bed-time stories told by the Story-Lady up in Massachusetts.

Radio Sets are now so cheap—good sets, too—that every farm home may be equipped with one. There are many things going through the air which will interest the farmer in his work. The livestock quotations, the grain quotations, the prices on all foodstuffs, lectures on better farming sent out through the Bureau of Agriculture—all these things will be an education in themselves.

DETECTOR SETS

These sets will pick up stations one thousand miles away and bring them in clear as a bell. Upkeep on these sets is very slight.

AMPLIFIERS

If you would have the messages come in strong, or if you wish to have a loud speaker, you must have an amplifier. These are good.

Curwensville's Own Column

A special program was on at the Strand yesterday evening in which a Curwensville boy was the special feature. The remarkable Scotch comedian William McTavish, he being accompanied on the program by Mabel Kalso. Mr. McTavish entertained for at least a half hour, with songs and stories which gained him highest honors in leading musical halls in Europe.

Curwensville's two free delivery men dated their new and nobby gray uniforms for the first time. It looks more fitted now as we see them coming toward our homes.

Pike township's board of auditors met in session in the office of "Square Dale" yesterday and noted on report the business that had accumulated and had been transacted in that large scope of territory during the past year, and it was no little either.

Mr. J. Bloom one of Curwensville's local milk men who has been rather seriously ill for several weeks was reported as slowly on the improve yesterday. He has been afflicted by gall stones off and on for several years.

The grist mill known as the John Irwin Improvement and located a short distance east of the B. & P. station was sold this week to a Mr. Meyer of Clearfield, who, we are in former will operate it, he already being in the flour and feed trade in the town six miles down the river.

McNaul street was the scene of a regular surprise party last evening and was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey (Bud) Smith, by a number of Mrs. Smith's lady friends. Mrs. Smith's anniversary came on Sunday so the ladies could not very well celebrate it but waited until last evening for the event. It was a swell gathering and heartily enjoyed by all who were present, the guest being Mrs. Letta Strickland, Mrs. Ray Smith, Mrs. Jas. Sheridan, Mrs. Walter Fullerton, Mrs. Chas. REDUCTION of TAXATION ISSUE IS LAID SQUARELY BEFORE PUBLIC

Copyright 1923, by National Budget Committee

THERE can be no doubt that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's recommendation to Act as Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, that the next Congress make a general downward revision of taxes, has struck a responsive chord throughout the country. It is a concrete recommendation that the land that can be made good in every American home, that after a decade of world war, the United States have passed the critical period of readjustment.

JOHN T. PRATT, Chairman of the National Budget Committee

The approach to non-mat conditions has not been opened without a considerable effort, and it will be well for a citizen's enlightenment to keep this in mind. The surplus of receipts in excess of expenditures which has resulted at the close of each year since the war ended, was made possible only by a program of economy in the conduct of public business. This program received definition in and an impulse from a new budgetary system which became operative in 1921. Administrative requirements were reduced to a minimum and constant pressure was exerted to anticipate tendencies on the part of Congress to return to the former system of ill-considered, extravagant appropriations. A revolutionary change in the attitude of administrative departments toward the expenditure of the public money was effected. Congress, on the whole, was obliged to cooperate. Mr. Mellon's recommendations are based on the assumption that this change on the part of the executive and legislative branches will continue.

The hour between this new method of conducting public affairs and the old system is now laid before the people for their consideration.

Through their representatives in Congress they must now decide whether they prefer general reduction in Federal taxes, or whether they prefer that the lid so tightly clamped down on Government expenditures during the last few years shall be removed. Either the program of economy and efficiency in Government affairs must be continued or the proposal to reduce taxes to any appreciable extent must be given up.

As an economic problem the present proposal to reduce taxes can be readily understood. It is estimated that taxes collected during the year 1924 will yield revenues of $3,200,000,000. This is the extent of expenditures to the Government within which tax reductions may be made and this margin will be reduced dollar for dollar in the proportion that expenditures not now contemplated by the Government are authorized by Congress.

Compared with the total of expenditures this margin is not large. Guaged, however, by the benefits, direct and indirect, which a reduction of taxes to that amount would bring to more than 14,000,000 taxpayers, it is an enormous sum. Relieved from payments to the Government is but a part of the benefit thus to be conferred. Of vastly greater importance in the long run would be the fulfillment of Secretary Mellon's prediction that a reduction in taxes will bring an increase of funds available for investment in productive industries. Such an outcome would mean not only more income for persons employed but a reduction in the cost of the necessities of life upon which those incomes are expended.

FORD IS RECLAIMING IRON FROM IMMENSE MOUNTAIN OF DUST

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4.—For more than three years the Ford Motor Company at its River Rouge plant here has been saving dust until today a veritable mountain of it, containing at least 50,000 tons, stands out in imposing proportions at one place on the plant grounds.

Of course, it isn't dust in the ordinary accepted terms, but a much more valuable property.

It is blast furnace dust, a fine, sand-like substance which is blown from the furnace in the blast and utterly worthless in that state, but valuable because fifty per cent of it is iron ore.

So the Ford Motor Company has been saving it until the time came when the iron ore could be reclaimed and in examples of the value of little savings this certainly stands out as a most striking example.

A moment's figuring will show it. Of the 50,000 tons in the dust mountain at River Rouge, 50 per cent or 25,000 tons is iron ore in dust form. The Ford motor T cylinder casting when finished weighs 82 pounds, and reclaiming the 25,000 tons of iron ore dust means sufficient iron for more than 600,000 cylinder castings.

The company now has started to reclaim this dust through the new sintering plant which has just begun operations and which forms another highly interesting feature of the River Rouge activities.

The sintering plant, a model of efficiency, is erected in close proximity to the two big blast furnaces and joins the giant ore bins from which the furnaces are fed.

The furnace dust, caught up in suction conveyors, is carried directly to the sintering plant and there is mixed with cast iron borings gathered from the various Ford manufacturing units.

Conveyors also carry the mixed dust and borings to the plant and dump the mixture into the sintering pan which is of three ton capacity. A gas flame of intense heat is passed over the dust and action of the coke under this heat and the suction draft fuses the mixture into chunks of sufficient size and weight for use in the furnace and thus the iron ore in the dust is reclaimed.

Ford sinter as produced at the new River Rouge plant is of finer quality than any on the market, running between 70 and 75 per cent iron. It is considered an important blast furnace material and because of its porous nature permits better and more effective operation of the blast with the result that the furnace product is more uniform and therefore a higher quality iron for the castings.

An average of fifty tons of blast furnace dust comes from the two furnaces daily. The sintering plant will produce more than 250 tons of sinter a day due to the mixture of iron borings and dust, which speeds up the process, reducing the sintering period from 20 or 30 minutes under ordinary circumstances to about seven minutes.

At least 100 tons are being taken every day from the great mountain of dust which the company has been saving and is estimated that at this rate it will take a year and half to use up the mountain and turn it into Ford iron.—Adv.

CHARLIE ABOT, COMPOSER AND FEATURED HUMORIST, HERE TONIGHT

Those who say romance is dead in this matter of fact age have but to recall the story of Charlie Abot to see their theories disproven. Thousands of friends of Styles and Miles of 1924 recall this demimure clown as one of the most humorous artists who has graced the American stage in many years. The older theatre-goers remember a chap of a generation ago, Frank Daniels, who was the nearest comparison to Charlie Abot that can be recalled.

Despite the charming results of his musical talents, Abot's greatest hold on his public is through his efforts as a comedian. Five years ago he deserted the concert field, where he was a recognized star, to enter the sphere of Musical Comedy Re-

TRINITY CHURCH ITEMS

Yesterday's list of music by the Choir was helpful and strong in rich sentiment that appealed to the heart. The morning congregation, with its portion of strangers—quite a number, listened to an exposition of Luther's 4:12-13, which was a study of "Meeting Crises" for they brought opportunity, responsibility and challenge to obedience. In the evening Micha 7: 18-19 furnished a wonderful text for the presentation of Gail's Matchless Mercy. This service was followed by evangelistic appeals and a season of praying, with urgent invitations.

A Piano On the Farm Means Pleasant Evenings

And pleasant evenings on the farm mean that the boys and girls will care more for staying at home than they will if their evenings and holidays are drab and lonesome. Picture to yourself the pleasure of the young folks when they can gather round the piano and sing the songs they like, can play and sing the songs that are dear to their hearts—it's the thing that puts life into the otherwise more lonesome life of the farm. Your neighbors will always come where there's music; and you'll find that your home will soon become the mecca for folks from miles around. You can't say that this is an unwelcome thought.

Full Value Given For Your Old Piano, Organ or Phonograph

We not only make you the surprising offer of the free chest of Rogers Silverware but we will allow you full value for your old phonograph, your old organ or your piano when you may have at the present time. This in itself is unprecedented in the day and age.

Low Payments Make This Offer Still More Wonderful

We can arrange terms for you as low as $10 per month WITHOUT INTEREST. This means that for a slight sum to start, you may own all the music your heart desires without feel the cost of it. You may have hours of delight yourself—we ask you, where can you get a cheaper or more lasting amusement?

WHATSOEVER A MAN SOWETH, THAT ALSO SHALL HE REAP

The above statement, familiar to everyone, has often been thought of in connection with plant life. Obviously, when seed is sown, it will grow, when seed is not sown, the result is a barren field. In the case of the farmer, the seed is the seedling, and the result is the harvest. Yet this breeding is equally as much a matter of sowing and reaping, of planning and obtaining the resultant product as in the case with plants. Every sow is more an art, carrying with it more anticipation, skill and forethought, because the live stock man gets a product that is alive, that breathes and moves. Each animal has an individuality that requires observation and study on the part of its master if the most is to be brought out in the specimen. The breeder is not watching an inanimate object, but rather has in his own hands the flesh and material from which he molds as a consequence, the form of a living being and thereby contributes to or detracts from the breed.

Our job, as producers of pure bred hogs—the most efficient pork machine—is a serious one. It requires the best that is in us, continual planning, constant observation, correct decisions. The breed is known by its representatives, as also is your herd known. As a community, then, the best sire possible must be obtained, and be used on the carefully selected choice of sows and gilts. This is the forethought. The care must come to the pigs even while still embryos and the decisions made as they grow and develop. By observation each can be fitted into its place whether boar or sow, gilt or barrow breeder or feeder and finally the goal is partially reached. By your deeds you are known. You are not toying with a couple of pigs—you are assisting in molding the characters of a great breed of swine. Just as you sow, also shall you reap!

COUNTY AGENT HAS SUPPLY OF FARM ACCOUNT BOOKS

Are you farming at a profit or a loss? If you are making money is it your dairy herd or your corn crop that is making your pocketbook bulge? Are you engaged in a livestock project or raising a cash crop that is eating the profits from your business as a whole?

A number of farmers in Clearfield County are answering these questions for themselves by keeping the farm account book put out at the cost price of 45 cents by the farm management extension department at State College. More than 1,500 of these account books are in use in the state at the present time, and in some cases are revealing profits where losses were expected, and losses where profits were expected. Only by accurate records is it possible to determine definitely which farm projects are paying.

"The first of January is the best time to open up an account book for the year," is the statement of the extension specialist in farm management. "The farmer has time to take an inventory of his property and can get his book in good shape for the busier season of the year." Besides furnishing accurate data on relative profits of the various enterprises on a farm, a well kept account book is a great aid in filling out the income tax blanks sent out by the government each year. Books can be secured at the County Agent's office at any time.

COMMUNITY BREED PLAN SHOWING A HEALTHY GROWTH

The livestock industry of Pennsylvania has discovered the road that leads to improvement and success. It is the highway paved with community breed association and cooperatively owned purebred sires.

A recent report of the agricultural extension department at the Pennsylvania State College credits the Keystone State with at least 150 community breed associations. These organizations make possible the use of carefully selected purebred sires on more than 2,000 farms. Swine associations have made a rapid growth in the past year and now number over 100 with at least 1,500 members.

Bred-for-production dairy bulls have been introduced on at least 560 farms through the 32 bull associations now operating in the state. Crawford County has one association that brings the services of purebred sires to more than 100 farmers.

A great improvement in the cotton and wool industry is noted in several communities where cooperatively owned rams are being used. The reports show eight ram associations in operation last year with a total membership of thirty farmers.

It has been estimated that the community breed association idea has reduced the cost of using purebred sires on these farms by at least seventy-five percent.

INDIANA COUNTY'S TON PIG LITTERS; HOW THEY DO IT

When it comes to producing ton litters, Indiana County ranks first for 1923. Out of eleven breeders who officially entered one litter in the contest, six of them produced more than a ton of weight when the pigs were 180 days old. These men were: T. M. Strong, whose litter weighed 2875 at 180 days of age; H. O. Lydie, weight of litter at six months of age 2441 pounds; S. T. Marshall & Sons, 2277 pounds; Fred G. Haer, 2234 pounds; Frech Brothers, 2230 pounds and Roy McElhose 2140 pounds. If you will figure you will find that is more than seven tons of pork from six litters of pigs, when they were 180 days.

Let's take a few minutes and consider each litter. Tom Strong had a pure bred Chester White sow and bred her to a pure bred Chester White boar. She farrowed a litter of 12 pigs on Mar. 17. Tom decided twelve were too many for her, so he took three and raised them by hand. The other nine stayed with the sow until they were ready to wean. They were divided into groups after weaning, given a lot to run over and were hand-fed a balanced ration. This sow last fall farrowed a litter of 15 pigs, 10 of which were raised and dressed 2190 pounds of pork when they were 180 days old. There is another fine litter on her now. Can anyone say this sow is not an efficient pork machine?

H. O. Lydie's sow farrowed March 13 and raised 11 pigs. She was practically a pure bred sow. The litter was sired by a pure bred Duroc boar. During the growing and feeding season, this litter ran in a blue grass pasture in an orchard. There was running water for a wallow, though usually not enough to drink. They received a ration of corn, oats and rye chop, 60 per cent tankage and three gallons of skim milk each day.

The pigs belonging to S. T. Marshall and Sons were farrowed April 27. Ten pigs composed the litter. They were sired by a pure bred Poland China boar and out of a pure bred Berkshire sow. Running water was in the clover and blue grass sod on which they foraged. In addition they received liberally of a balanced ration.

Fred G. Haer had a litter that was sired by a pure bred Duroc Jersey boar and out of a cross bred Chester White-Poland China sow. These pigs were kept under almost ideal conditions, being on a good sized field, through which was running a shallow stream that had a stony bottom. In one corner of the field was a splendid grove, giving natural shade and a cool place for the pigs to sleep. The rest of the field was covered with a splendid blue grass sod. In feed, the pigs received corn, rye, skim milk and a little tankage.

Pure bred sires were found again at Frech Brothers. Their litter of eleven pigs was farrowed March 26 and were pure bred Chester Whites. These sows could go in a shaded grove, where water was always available. However, most of their time was spent in a clover pasture which was adjoining and to which they had free access. They received middlings, buckwheat and oat chop, 60 per cent tankage and skim milk.

Roy McElhose used a rape forage for his litter of ten pigs that were farrowed March 7. These pigs were sired by a pure bred Berkshire boar and were out of a high grade Chester White sow. These pigs were hand fed and water had to be carried to them. The ration received was 400 pounds corn, 300 pounds middlings, 100 pounds 60 per cent tankage (the 4-3-1 ration) and skim milk.

Now, here are over seven tons of pork from six sows in 180 days. Every one will say that's results. They were gotten by (1) using blood and breeding. Every one of these litters was sired by a pure bred boar, three of the litters were out of pure bred sows. Of the remaining three sows, two were very high grades (practically pure bred) and the other sow was a crossbred, that is both her sire and dam were pure breeds. Next (2) every one of these litters received a balanced ration, and plenty of water. In every case but one they were on pasture. Lastly (3) they were managed well. A large litter was produced in every case. They had ex-

WATER FOR COWS

It seems unnecessary, with a food so plentiful and cheap as water, to call attention to the importance of providing the cows with as much of it as they care to consume. We know from personal observation and farm surveys made by experiment stations and other institutions that a comparatively small percentage of the dairy cows in this country receive an adequate supply of water.

It is not enough to water cows once a day and it is nothing short of criminal to require cows to drink ice water. No dairyman can afford to water cows but once a day or force them to drink ice cold water from a tank or from a hole cut in the ice. It makes no difference what system is used in supplying cows with all the water they care to drink, but it pays to permit them to have water whenever they desire it and at a temperature of fifty degrees Fahrenheit or higher. If they are given a chance, they will drink water several times a day and eventually after consuming the meal or portion of their rations.

We consider individual water cups, which keep water before the cows all the time, the best and most economical way of supplying the water. Successful dairymen employ other methods of providing their cows with water, such as carrying it to them in pails or running it in the manger, but whatever system is employed it is of the greatest importance that the cows have all the water they care to drink and at any time they desire it.

It is not uncommon to find cows that have not been properly supplied with water, increasing their flows of milk from three to five pounds per day when given all the water they desire. At present milk is worth from two and one-half to four cents a pound, and three pounds of milk at three cents a pound would amount to $1.80 a day. There are men losing more than this per day because they fail to give their cows all the water they care to drink.

Farmers Launch War Against Rat Production

War has been declared on the rat population of Pennsylvania. Following a discovery at State College that a single rat will eat between 13 and 14 pounds of feed in a year, farmers in many communities are waging a battle to get rid of these thieves.

The Wayne County Farm Bureau is offering a prize to the man who turns in the largest number of rat tails at the end of the year. One poultry farm reports a casualty list of 277 rats last year. The manager figures that by destroying these pests, he cut down his feed bill by at least $250. In addition to consuming great quantities of grain the rodents have a habit of enjoying a feast on young chickens at regular intervals.

The rate of multiplication of the rat population is astounding. It has been found by experiment that a single rat may produce more than 50 offspring in a single year. Trans. poisoned food, cats, dogs and runs are all instruments of war that are employed in the battle against the pest. Poison feed is a dangerous method, especially on a poultry farm.

Exercise lots or fields and shade either natural or artificial. They were kept clean and thrifty.

Isn't it the same old story—blood plus feed plus management means success?

T. B. IS MENACE TO COUNTY'S CATTLE PRODUCTION

Probably the greatest menace to the livestock industry, and especially to the dairy industry of Clearfield County is tuberculosis. Not only does this dreaded disease peril the animal population of the county, but it menaces the health of every citizen.

Every effort is being put forth to eventually wipe out tuberculosis from the herds of the state and this county has succeeded in signing up 104 herds for the test. Tuberculosis is a transmissible disease and hence a complete eradication in a certain area is necessary for permanent safety. A transmissible disease is one which is produced by a living organism which enters the body of the animal where it grows and develops and may or may not cause death. In the case of tuberculosis the disease is transmitted by the putting of it, T. B. is "catching".

The organisms of "bug" as they are sometimes called in everyday parlance, leave the body of the infected animal in various ways and may enter the body of some other animal. The disease is common to all warm blooded animals and a few of the cold blooded species are susceptible. The name "tuberculosis" is derived from the characteristic bunches or swellings which are invariably found in the diseased animal.

"Is tuberculosis 'handed down' or inherited by the offspring of tubercular cattle?" is the question asked many times each day. "This rarely occurs unless the reproductive organs of the parent are diseased," is the answer of the scientists. They insist that ordinarily the disease is contracted after birth.

"How is the disease introduced into your herd?" There are three ways in which it may enter a herd. First, by the purchase of a diseased animal. Another common way is by feeding factory byproducts, such as raw creamery skim milk and whey. The last way is by coming in direct contact with an affected animal.

It is often thought that a tubercular animal should show physical signs of illness that the disease should be detected by a careful physical examination. Such is not the case, however, for even the most experienced and careful veterinarian cannot be sure by a physical examination whether the animal is infected or not. A badly diseased animal loses flesh, its coat becomes roughened, the eyes are dull and staring and there is a general appearance of lack of vitality.

POULTRYMEN COMPETE FOR BIG PRIZE MONEY AT FIRST ANNUAL SHOW

Single Comb Rhode Island Reds are to compete for their share of over $1,000 offered as prizes in the first annual poultry show held by the Pennsylvania State Poultry Association in Harrisburg, January 22 to 26. The Rhode Island Red is fast becoming one of the most popular breeds of poultry in Pennsylvania. Red breeders realize this and are always ready to exhibit their birds. It is expected by the management of the show that S. C. Rhode Island Reds will be one of the largest classes.

The new breed, Rhode Island Whites, recently admitted to the Standard, will also be shown. R. I. White breeders will take advantage of this opportunity to introduce their birds to the public and a good showing is predicted.

Egg Show Will Furnish A Lesson In Marketing

Many valuable lessons in the production and marketing of eggs will be brought out in the egg exhibit held in conjunction with the Farm Products Show in Harrisburg, January 22-25.

The problem confronting many farmers and poultrymen today is how to obtain a better price for eggs. New York is paying around eighty cents a dozen but many Pennsylvania farmers are receiving only fifty or sixty cents. Sorting the eggs for uniform size and color, and packing them in neat, clean containers is at least a partial solution of the problem. Egg dealers will always pay more for a product properly graded and packed. The display at the egg show will furnish a guide for poultrymen in the proper handling of their product.

More than fifty cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded and a silver loving cup will be presented to the county sending in the largest exhibit. Premium lists can be obtained from the Secretary of Agriculture at Harrisburg, the Farm Bureau Office, Clearfield or from L. W. Steelman, poultry extension specialist at State College. They will also furnish cartons for shipping single dozen exhibits.

COUNTIES HELP STATE CONTROL TUBERCULOSIS

With more than 14,000 farmers over the State making requests for cattle tests and in view of the limited funds available for the vast amount of tuberculosis eradication work which remains to be done, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has made an appeal for local assistance in counties where the petitions are most urgent.

County commissioners authorized by a law enacted in the 1923 Legislature to make appropriations from county funds for the purpose of co-operating with the State Department of Agriculture in controlling and suppressing dangerous livestock or plant diseases.

Two counties, Crawford and Jefferson, have already agreed to cooperate and render financial assistance in conducting the tests for which 90 per cent of the farmers petitioned. The counties share of the expense includes transportation of the veterinarians, disinfection of the buildings after the tests are made and clerical help required to keep the test records. Previous operations have been begun in Crawford County by the State veterinarians who expect to be able to start the work in Jefferson County by the first week in January.

Additional test work in other parts of the State will be arranged by the Bureau of Animal Industry in accord with its policy of proportioning funds available for tuberculosis eradication where three-fifths of the funds allocated to the counties according to their respective cattle population, and the remaining two-fifths reserved for testing as in Crawford, Jefferson and Mercer counties.

MANURE PRESERVATIVES

Where manure must be stored, acid phosphate added at the rate of thirty to fifty pounds per ton of manure is satisfactory. Another method is to add one or two pounds per head of stock daily. Scattering the preservative in the stable after cleaning or on each day's manure, before or after removing from the stable.

WINTER MANAGEMENT

It is the beginning of another winter. We are in the midst of another breeding season. What the crop will be next spring depends largely upon the management of the herd between now and then. The brood sows should receive first consideration. The market a year from now depends on them. If they are to produce large, strong, thrifty litters you must begin to assist them now. They are more apt to produce big litters if their condition is healthy, their feed good and their quarters comfortable. Likewise, the boar should be of strong vitality, active and moderately used. It may be stated here, however, that the cause of small litters can more often be traced to the sow than to the sire.

After the sows are safely bred they can be turned together. In fact they are better off together in a pasture lot than individually in small lots or pens. Be sure to keep the sows out where there is plenty of opportunity for exercise, water and pure air. It will make them better mothers. The sleeping quarters should be so placed that these matrons must travel some distance each night and morning for feed and water. If possible the water should be some distance from either the feeding place or the house. More often it is more convenient to feed and water at the same place especially when the water must be carried. In this case, a third location is gotten by building a low feed rack, and placing in it a fork full of good leguminous hay—preferably alfalfa, though clover or soybean hay will do very well. The object of having distance between sleeping quarters hay racks and feeding place is that while the sows go back and forth they naturally get ample exercise.

No ration can be given for the brood sows that will suit everybody. What is practical for one breeder may be entirely unsatisfactory for another because of individual conditions. All brood sow rations must be balanced, containing a variety of feeds, and carrying ample bone and muscle building material. Without these the embryo litter will be undernourished, and a weak litter will result. It is a mistake to say that an animal protein, such as tankage, fish meal or a mill by-product adds much to a brood sow feed. Any other method of balancing a feed for this class of animals employs simply a substitute protein, that is not as effective nor does it furnish the same amount of bone and muscle elements. The amount of these higher priced animal proteins need not be large, and perhaps under extraordinary conditions strong pigs can be produced on an all vegetable or plant ration, when accompanied by plenty of water, care and exercise.

Lastly, a word should be said about housing. These quarters need not be elaborate but should be dry, free from draughts yet well ventilated, light and clean. Most men will find after some experimenting that a ground or plank floor is to be preferred to a concrete one. Some breeders get very good results with concrete floors by using large amounts of bedding and frequently cleaning the quarters. A few breeders have been using open sheds (the open side facing south or away from prevailing winds) made of posts, rails and corrugated iron. This is placed in the middle of a fenced field and has proved very satisfactory.

PARASITES ON HOGS

Crude oil or waste oil from engines are satisfactory for killing lice on hogs. Apply with a sprinking can, brush, cloth, or with the aid of a rubbing post. A standard two per cent coal tar dip in water is also effective. It should be repeated in ten days.

FEEDING THE DAIRY CALF

Leave the calf with the cow for one or two days and then take it away and feed from eight to ten pounds of warm milk per day for about two weeks. Then start substituting a little skim milk, increasing gradually until at six weeks of age the calf will be on skim milk entirely. From twelve to sixteen pounds make a good daily feed. Be sure to keep the pails clean and feed regularly.

BY THE SLEEPING SEINE

So Still It Lies Before Dawn That Its Course to the Sea Seems to Have Stopped.

You will have to stay out late or get up very early to catch the silver Seine asleep. And even then you might find it waking, wind-ruffled and restless. For the Seine seldom goes to sleep. But when, by some good fortune, you surprise it slumbering then you truly find a sleeping beauty. So still it lies sometimes in the hour before dawn that it would seem for once to have stayed its course to join the sea. Not the faint ripple disturbs its polished surface.

And sleeping, it would seem to be dream-heated. It dreams of the city through which it flows. Above it hangs the starry sky; tall buildings seem to peep into its depths, and the bridge stretch across it almost carelessly as though protecting a child that had gone to sleep.

And the dream of the river is of those same stars that shine above, of the tall buildings that are peeping down, of the bridges that stretch across above its bosom. For in the mirror of its shining surface you will see all these things more beautiful perhaps than their reality, and looking down into this dream city, you will speak quite softly lest haply you might wake the sleeping Seine.—London Mail.

MARIE GREAT HELP TO HER

Mother Could Do Washing for Eleven So Easy When Girl Played a Musical.

Unselfish mothers too often make or permit their daughters to be selfish, says the pity. One such mother, according to a story that Booth Tarkington likes to tell, was bending industriously over the washtub when a neighbor said to her, "Hard at it as usual, ain't ye?"

"Yes, this is wash day, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, and washin' for eleven don't leave you much spare time on your hands."

"Is that Marie I hear singin' to the kitchen in the parlor?"

Marie, by the way, was in infancy christened Mary and in early youth was always known as Mollie.

"Yes, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, that's her. The help she is to me! Oh, dear! Oh, dear! I don't know how I'd get along without that girl! Every Monday morning she gets out the piano, and opens up the piano, and while I'm scrubbin' the clothes she sings the latest, cheeriest pieces, like 'Mother's Day,' or 'Dear Mother, in Dreams I See You,' or 'Lighten Mother's Tasks With Love,' and the work just rolls off like play. I tell you, Mrs. O'Hoolahan, there ain't many girls like our Marie."

—Youth's Companion.

Laughter.

A low, musical voice is one of the greatest charms of woman. It sets the seal on her beauty. Without it she loses much of her power of attraction. But only a German has turned away from a pretty girl because of her laughter. There is laughter so loud that it ceases to be hearty and becomes vulgar, so shrill that it gets on the nerves, so strident that it suggests hysterics, and so insane and cackling that the listener concludes that only an empty-headed woman could laugh so.

Many girls do not realize the effect of their laughter, and continually laugh and giggle needlessly. Thus they destroy their chances of making a favorable impression upon people they meet.

Yet a low, musical laugh is a great attraction, the greater because it is so rare. Do you possess it? If not, with patience and perseverance you can achieve it. First listen to yourself whenever you laugh. You will probably be very disagreeably surprised, and realize how ugly laughter can be. You must lower the pitch of your voice. Practice laughing in your own room when you are alone. Banish the cackle on a single note; laughter is almost a scale—harmonious and attractive.

Kellogg's Bran is nature's relief from the terrors of constipation!

Never make light of constipation or any one of its symptoms—there is no telling what disease you may be leading into! The one thing to do—IMMEDIATELY—is to fight constipation to the last ditch! Not with pills or cathartics; they cannot give you lasting relief. Not with foods with a low bran content; they do not have the bran-bulk to do the work!

What you need, what will give you permanent relief is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Kellogg's is scientifically prepared to relieve constipation. It will relieve the chronic case or the mild case. You need it, your family needs it!

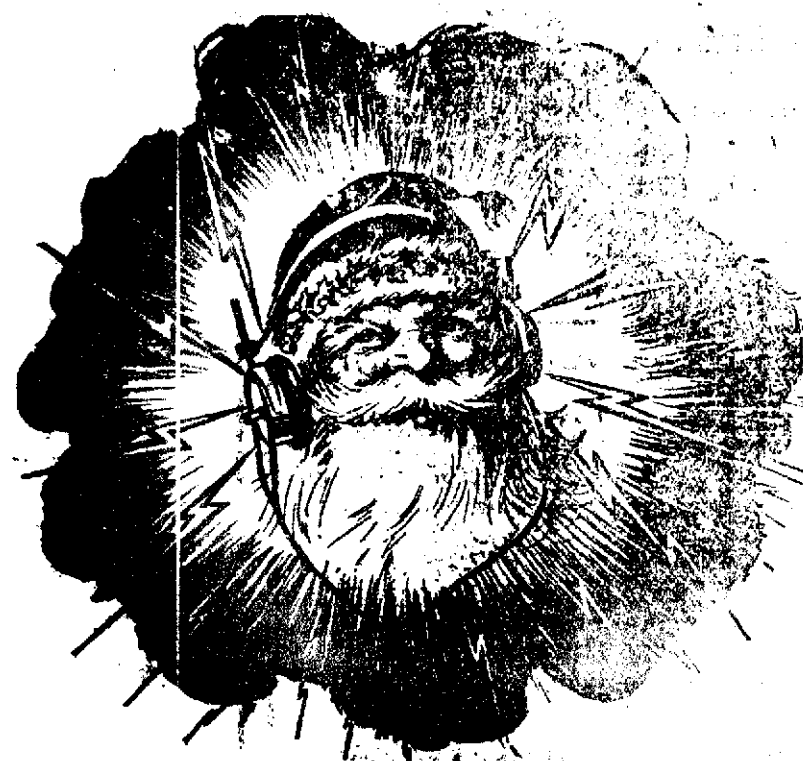

But you must eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—each day! At least two tablespoonfuls; in chronic cases, this amount with each meal! And, eating Kellogg's Bran is a delight rather than a hardship. It has a delicious, appealing nut-like flavor that wins the most fastidious appetite.

Every day when you eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal, sprinkled on your favorite hot or cold cereal or cooked or mixed with hot cereals, think of the health every spoonful contains for you! Think how Kellogg's Bran is sweeping and cleansing the alimentary tract; how it is driving out the toxic poisons and freeing your system from dangers of dreaded diseases! Your physician will recommend it!

Kellogg's Bran is extra-delicious made into countless bakery batches. Recipes on every package.

All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran; it is also obtainable at first-class hotels and clubs in individual packages. Ask for it at your restaurant.

TOO MANY BEAUX

By RUTH BIRDSALL

IT DON'T look well for a girl to have so many beaux. Besides, that Belcher girl's too pretty. Taint right."

Miss Emanda Jenkins, with a determined click of her very false teeth, adjusted her steel-bowed spectacles and sat down.

The charity circle was holding its weekly meeting. The town's half-dozent out-and-dried spinners, the two Paisley widows, old Lizzie Harriold, Mrs. Tucker, Squire Fishdyke's wife, and Mrs. Worthing, the timid little wife of the village parson, were present and discussing the only summer boarder in the village who had unconsciously become the one stimulant of the season.

"It's a pity she's so pretty," sighed Lida Paisley, soulfully. "She'd make a real nice wife for some good man, or a teacher, but to be only a summer boarder! Taint natural."

"Maybe somebody ought to call and talk to her," suggested Sara. "I ain't hankerin' for the job myself, but I'd go with somebody else, if they'd do the talking. I ain't much on words."

"Him, snapped Emanda. "If you ain't, why do you see so many? I don't see why I shouldn't go. She don't snort me. If I'd wanted to curl my hair and wear stiffs for shoes and nothing but lace for undergarments, I could a had beaux myself."

"How do you know what she wears, Emanda?" chirped Lida Paisley.

"I guess I can see folks' washins on the line blowin' right in my face, can't I? Such a show of lace and ribbons tain't I? I shouldn't think Mrs. Bixby'd tolerate it."

"Let us not censure," soothed Mrs. Worthing. "Mrs. Bixby may be trying to do good by harboring this young woman. My husband has seen the young lady, and finds no trace of depravity, but says that she seems most cultivated."

"Cultivated?" shrieked half a dozen throats.

"Maybe it's all right for a man like your husband to talk that way about a girl who's upstartin' our village and has three beaux, but I tain't in front of her door at once. Tills afternoon, a towerin' car drove up and let out a man dressed up like no mother's son ought to be. Half an hour later, a car, low like a lumber punga, came to a quick stop in front of the gate and a chap in white flannels and no hat jumped out. I saw it myself."

"Did you say there was a third auto, too, 'Manda?" asked one of the party. "Yes, and what's more, it didn't drop one man out, but three of 'em. That Rose Belcher ain't going to be content long before she'll try for our village men folks."

A shudder ran up every mother's spine, a terrified gasp of last hopes shattered escaped from every spinster.

"Act now, I says," continued Emanda. "Put it to a vote. All the ladies who feel it our duty to send a committee to call upon Miss Belcher and show her the errors of her ways, please signify it in the usual custom. The 'ayes' have it. Now, who is going to be the committee? I, for one, will volunteer."

A moment of silence, then Bedlam.

Mrs. Worthing came to the rescue.

"Ladies, is it not meet that we all go? I propose that we cease our work a half hour earlier than usual, besides from our usual cup of tea, and call at Sister Bixby's house as a body. Many heads are better than one."

Chairs were scraping, spools dropping, aprons switching when the door opened. Rose Belcher paused on the threshold.

"May I come in? You probably don't know who I am, but I have seen you good women gathering here all summer and I'm dying to meet you all. I'm Rose Belcher, from Mrs. Bixby's house. Dear Mrs. Bixby is always busy."

A stunned silence, out of which Mrs. Worthing, with dignity and a honeyed voice, rose.

"At last, my dear sister, you have come to the fold."

"Yes, indeed, I'll fold. It is bandages, or—"

"No," snapped Emanda Jenkins, crisply. "Not bandages, bed quilts."

"Bed quilts?" smiled Rose. "My grandmother helped me make one when I was a little girl, and my hubbie says that it is prettier than any other quilt we have."

"Your what?" from a dozen throats.

"My quilt," answered Rose.

"No, no," stammered Emanda Jenkins. "Who'd you say likes your quilt?"

"My husband," flitting her sleek eyebrows.

A sigh oozed out of the Charity circle.

"Come in, Mrs. Belcher. Have a cup of tea. We're about to brew it," invited Sara Tucker.

"Thank you; you're all so kind. I need friends today. I've just said good-by to my dearest uncle for a year, and it makes me feel lonely. He stopped with his sons and I couldn't half talk to them, because a book agent was trying to sell me a set of sonnettes, and a boy had come from town to run Mrs. Bixby's piano for me. Every thing was all tumbled up, so I came here for refuge."

"You are right, my dear," purred Mrs. Worthing. "We aim to be just that a refuge."

"I'm," said Emanda Jenkins, and her voice was less rasping. "I once saw that what we aim at being, but we don't always hit the target. Mrs. Belcher, do you crochet? I thought if you did, you might give me the patterns for some of them edges that I see out on Mrs. Bixby's clothesline every Monday."

"It's Bixby's That Hurts."

When a man of sixty gets into a reminiscence mood, he can be forgiven for recalling the songs of his youth if he doesn't try to sing them, remarks the Somerville Journal.

Not Entirely Alone.

"Yes, your house," said the aggrieved woman, as she dabbed her eyes. "The neglected, me shamefully. Why, he never was at home."

"And I suppose you had to spend your evenings all by yourself, with no companionship whatever?"

"W-w-well," she sobbed, "I had two goldfish."

Terrible Faux Pas.

What caused the coolness between the De Golds and their country cousins?

"Why, when she was visiting them she made a terrible blunder by asking if the family crest in the tablecloth was the laundry mark."

Cause for Divorce.

In Turkey, during the Seventeenth century, to refuse or neglect to give coffee to one's wife was a cause for divorce. The men made provisions when marrying never to let their wives be without coffee.

Ideal "Beauty" to Man.

A look of intelligence in man is what regularity of features in woman; it is a style of beauty to which the most vain may aspire.—La. Bee.

CHRISTMAS

It is right before us; beckons us for enthusiastic participation. There is no time to lose. Thousands soon will stir with commanding desire of gift buying and overrun store and shop. Once again we admonish gift seekers to select early in the season and early in the day. The reasons are obvious, for comfort, ease and certainty attend those who follow out this injunction.

Our store is fully prepared for a bounteous Yuletide. It is replete with the very finest things to be had for holiday giving, and its helpful service of suggestion and counsel is at the command of all shoppers.

The KITCHEN CABINET

It is many centuries since Marcus Aurelius observed the faithful disquiet of Rome, which must have been strikingly like our faithful disquiet today, and proffered counsel, headed then as now: "Take pleasure in one thing and rest in it, passing from one social act to another thinking of God."—Agnes Repplier.

TASTY FOODS

After the family have enjoyed boiled tongue serve a few slices of:

Tongue Toast.—Take a cupful of chopped tongue, add two tablespoons of cream, one egg yolk well mixed with the cream, a tablespoonful of kitchen bouquet, salt, pepper, a grating of nutmeg and a bit of chopped parsley. Stir over the heat until well blended, then spread on buttered bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven. Garnish with watercress and serve.

Stuck Mince Pie.—Roll twelve crackers, add one-half cupful of vinegar, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of hot water, one-half cupful of honey, one cupful each of currants and raisins. This makes filling enough for three or four pies.

The Real Mince Meat.—Get a piece of meat from the neck, wash in salt-water (soaking well) until tender. Chop very fine in a wooden bowl with chopping knife. To one measure of chopped meat add two measures of chopped fine-flavored apple. Add to two quarts of chopped meat two glasses of apple or plain jelly, a cupful of chopped suet, two pounds of brown sugar, two table-spoonsful of cinnamon, one table-spoonful of cloves, a finely-chopped orange with the seeds removed, the grated rind of a lemon, the juice of a lemon, a pint of brandy, and a pint of the broth that the meat was cooked in. Add a teaspoonful or more of nutmeg and a teaspoonful of more of cloves. Cook until well scalded, put in pie pan and seal as any fruit. A hot pie with the addition of a few small large raisins, a little cider, if desired will make a large pie. Candied fruit and chopped almonds may be added if one does not consider expense. Use the recipe as it stands is exceedingly good and a cherished one in a family of good cooks.

Stiffness, Aches, Pains Relieved

Persons who have tried other remedies for aches and pains are the more enthusiastic because of the relief afforded by the Anti-Pain ointment. It is a relief in all cases for the same. Thousands of persons have found that Anti-Pain Ointment relieves rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and other aches and pains. If your druggist cannot supply you write for free sample, or send $1.00 to the Standard Medical Company, Landford, Pa., for a large jar. The $1.00 size contains three times as much as the 50c size.

Poultry Clubs Sell Standard Eggs especially in the West, have done much to open the eyes of the older generation as to what results may be expected.

These clubs not only have the benefit of export direction, but they are standardizing their product in such a way that the marketing has become exceedingly profitable, especially in those regions where there is enough excess grain raised to provide ample starch and where there are large open ranges where grasshopper and insect life is prolific. This furnishes a large proportion of the protein necessary to egg production otherwise obtained from meat scrap or skim milk.

"It seems to me," says Mr. Den-

[National Crop Improvement Service.]

IT SEEMS difficult to understand why, with eggs and spring chickens selling for the prices they do, so many poultry raisers should go broke.

No matter how profits figure on paper there are many things to prevent success in poultry. Chickens and turkeys, ducks and geese require the same careful attention as any other business.

Boys' and Girls' Poultry clubs, which are now in active operation, like A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire company, "that if our boys and girls, especially in the Northwest where there may be a surplus of wheat, should each raise a large number of hens and central-ize their eggs daily that they could soon pay off the mortgage and restore prosperity."

"In every neighborhood there should be a dressing plant or station where live poultry could be shipped in carloads by concerted effort to the best market."

Would Like To.

An absent-minded country vicar met the village postman trudging along a dusty road on a hot summer afternoon. The postman remarked that he had still a mile to walk just to "liver one newspaper."

"My goodness!" exclaimed the sympathetic clergyman. "I'd never wait all that distance for such a trifle. Why don't you send it by post?"

HOME MADE TEA FOR CONSTIPATION

Is used by entire families because it is purely vegetable, does the work and costs very little.

Why pay high prices for Liver and Bowel remedies when none are better than Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea which is purely vegetable, can be brewed at home, and a 30-cent package will last a long time?

Thousands of old people will tell you they have been drinking it for years, and after the liver and bowels have been put in fine condition in a few days by a before bedtime cup, that only an occasional cup is afterwards necessary to keep one feeling fit and fine.

People who drink a cup of Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea once in a while seldom, if ever, have any bilious attacks, sick headache, or sallow skin. It's good for boys and girls, especially those who are peevish and fretful. Druggists have been selling it for many years.

Let us send you A Victrola for Christmas

Ford Trucks Are Bought On Performance Records

If you were to ask a hundred or a thousand—Ford truck owners why they use Ford trucks, in preference to all others, they would likely say, "Because the Ford stands up."

They know that under the endless grind of daily service the Ford stays on the job month in and month out, with very little mechanical care, and with practically no expense for repairs or replacements.

They would emphasize the work this truck does, not its initial cost.

Ford Trucks can be bought through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS MORNING

Bao, wondering what it is all about; little sister, eyes dancing, hoping the big package contains a doll, and Bobby frankly impatient, waiting for the fascinating bundles to be unwrapped—doesn't that spell 9 o'clock in the morning, December 25th? And, oh yes, Grandmother and Dad must not be left out of the picture.

Accessories

That Will Solve Many a Gift Problem

There are never enough Accessories. Particularly on this day, and age when a woman must change her gloves, her hosiery, every time she changes her dress. You'll find accessories here very complete—and they are all equipped for gift giving, too. Moreover, everything is priced so moderately that your gift budget will go farther than you ever dreamed.

GLOVES—

EVERY WOMAN'S FAVORITE VANITY HER HANDBAG

She carries her Handbag everywhere and she realizes how it can mar or add to the effect of her costume. There's no doubt but what she will adore to receive a stunning new Handbag for Christmas. Especially one of the new ones; a suede envelope Bag handsomely embroidered in silk in Chinese design or a shimmering beaded vanity Bag for dressier use. Prices range from—

$1.00 up to $25.00

A NEW BLOUSE WILL GIVE HER A CHRISTMAS THRILL

The fashion world has indeed fallen in love with Blouses and it's not to be wondered at considering they are more beautiful this year than ever before. Our new display is so alive with color and oriental loveliness, it is indeed a worthy Christmas display. How wonderful Sister would look in a long Russian Blouse edged with deep bands of fur. Come in and see them. They are priced very moderately.

The Christmas Store

Joy is in the air! A new Christmas is at the threshold and from tip to toe our store is in complete readiness, prepared to make it the jolliest, merriest Christmas ever. The wealth, and genius of many lands is expressed in our merchandise. Every nook and corner of all the departments is filled with enticing lovely gifts that will bring pleasure and beauty into many peoples' lives. If you are on a pilgrimage for gifts you will find this store is a Christmas shrine worthy of your worship.

It's Easy to Make Girls Happy ---

Especially when you help them complete their most treasured toilet set. "I only need a brush"—remember when you heard Marie say that, or "A tray will complete my set"—another said. We have some especially fine French ivory toilet sets which may be purchased by piece or by set. And there is such a variety of ornamentation that you are sure to have no trouble in matching a set already started. Prices very moderate.

JUST THE GIFT FOR MOTHER

An Umbrella

She will love to have a nice one to keep for her very own use. There are new bakelite and amber handles with comfy straps to slip over her arm. The silk is of the very best and mother will never fear pouring rain as long as she is under its protection. Imagine how surprised and delighted she will be on Christmas day. Priced from—

$2.50 to $15.00

THE MORE PERSONAL GIFT

Lingerie

From one intimate friend to another, there's nothing that makes lovelier gifts. And the perky hemstitching; the fine laces; the rosebuds of ribbon on these dainty garments just seem to inspire gift giving. There are appropriate suggestions galore in these Lingerie displays.

Colorful Gifts

Cheerfulness is personified in these bits of colored Glassware. A pair of candlesticks—a compote or a candy jar will surprise you in their ability to brighten up the home. They make such acceptable and inexpensive gifts.

50c to $5.00

A whiff from the Orient or the odor of an old fashioned garden—there's a perfume to suit every taste and personality. Which means, of course, that perfume makes a charming, and most acceptable gift.

GIFTS OF JEWELRY For Every Woman's Christmas

From the workshops of masters in their craft come lovely ornaments of silver and o'd, of pearls and gems. And there is no denying that it means dreams come true to the woman whose Christmas box reveals one of these lovely gifts.

TO BEGIN at the end of a lovely strand of pearls, each bead blends with the next in unbroken harmony of size and color.
